Shearn Shows Payments Were Compensation for Inducing Whalen to Act

The Transit Commission went right shead yesterday with its inquiry into the operation of the Hylan hus system, unmindful of the election and its result, as though to refute the Mayor's charge that the inquiry had been launched solely for campaign purposes and political effect. Whatever may be its fate under the new administration at Albany, the commission is believed to have amply justified its inquiry by disclosing how completely the operation of busses under Commissioner Grover Whalen's Department of Plant and Structures was made an adjunct of the Tammany political machine.

Clarence J. Shearn, special counsel to the commission who is conducting the investigation, got in one of his most telling blows at yesterday's session. By testimony drawn from unwilling witnesses Mr. Shearn traced substantial payments from the profits of one bus line to two of the most prominent Tammany leaders in the Brenx. These payments, which amounted to more than $5,000 apiece in the course of a few months, were admittedly made, in at least one instance, as compensation for the obtaining of a permit for the bus line from Commissioner Whalen.

Admits Getting Big Share

Admits Getting Big Share

Thomas H. O'Neil, a Tammany district leader and former Sheriff of the Bronx, admitted under oath that he got a one-third share of 25 per cent of the gross receipts of the West Farms of the gross receipts of the west rarms Bus Corporation solely for his services in going to Commissioner Whalen and inducing him to issue a permit for the line. Another one-third share, which was to have gone to Arthur H. Murphy, Tammany county chairman of the Bronx, has been paid since his death in Eshrusry each month to his estate.

The existence of some powerful influence behind the West Farms Corporation has been suspected since a previous session, when Louis Karsch, a silk salesman, who appeared as a vice-president of the corporation on its books, testified that he had no knowledge of its activities and no interest in it, financial or otherwize. At yesterday's session Christian Broschart, another director, according to the corporation's books, admitted that the was acting merely as a dummy for O'Neil. Subsequently O'Neil verified Broschart's story and made the further admission that Karsch was on the directorate as a representative of the Murphy interests.

ber, 1921, O'Neil testified, and agreed to pay him the one-third share in return for his aid in getting the permit. Murphy was brought into the deal to furnish capital which O'Neil thought might become necessary if another franchise could be obtained. When, in accordance with the Hylan policy, the day-to-day permit was issued the idea of getting a franchise was dropped, but the Murphy share was continued, despite the fact that no capital would be heeded.

Even Representation in Congress

The preponderance of Republican representation in Congress was overthrown. After the landslide of 1920 the state had one lone Democrat in the lower house at Washington. The lonely standard bearer, C. F. X. O'Brien, went back again on Tuesday, but he took five other Democrats with him, and the state is now evenly divided in its representation.

Among the oddities of the results is the fact that Hunterdon and Sussex, both normally Democratic counties, voted against Edwards and Silzer by small majorities.

is the fact that Hunterdon and Sussex, both normally Democratic counties, voted against Edwards and Silzer by small majorities.

The Democratic strength made its most vigorous display in Hudson County, Governor Edwards's home, and the district where Frank Hague, Mayor of Jersey City, rules supreme. Hague predicted a 75,000 majority for Edwards from Hudson at the end of last week, and boosted his figures to 90,000 wards from Hudson at the end of last week, and boosted his figures to 90,000 on Monday night. His latter estimate came near to being correct. Hudson gave the Edwards-Silzer beer and wine combination a majority of 88,000.

Senator Frelinghuysen, veteran statesman and personal friend of President Harding, made the poorest showing of all the leading candidates. Although thirteen of the twenty-one counties gave him majorities, sixteen of the list demonstrated a preference for Runyon, and the Runyon vote beat Frelinghuysen's in every county save
